Historical Note

Fred O. Scroggs (1891-1967) was a foundational patron of John C. Campbell Folk School and an influential figure in the local economy and politics of Brasstown, NC. Fred was educated at Young Harris College in Georgia. Through his life he was a teacher, principal, postmaster, businessman, and many other roles. Although he owned or operated multiple businesses in Brasstown over the course of his life, the role that is most frequently attributed to him is his ownership of the Scroggs general store, which not only sold goods to the community but also acted as a gathering place.

Fred and his father Lucius Leander (L.L.) Scroggs are credited as early advocates for Olive Dame Campbell and Marguerite Butler to locate the Folk School in Brasstown. Fred's parents Lillian Strange Scroggs and L.L. Scroggs donated the original 25 acres on which the Folk School was first established. The parcel of land, passed down through the Strange family to Lillian, was first purchased by Nelson Strange from the federal government in 1838, after the forcible removal of the Cherokee people from this area.[1] After securing the establishment of the Folk School in 1925, the Scroggs family continued to be key players in the activities of the school and its sister organizations. Fred is recognized as an integral intermediary, in both an official and an interpersonal sense, between Brasstown and the Folk School in its early era.[2] His store served as the home for the Brasstown Savings and Loan Association, and Fred was one of the Association's directors. Fred was also the first president of the Brasstown Farmer's Association.

Fred was involved extensively in the Brasstown and Cherokee County/Clay County community in a variety of ways. He was known for his wealth of knowledge in genealogy and local history, collecting stories and performing research on his own family history and others of the area. He also operated a lapidary and was a passionate "rockhound" with an extensive collection of rocks and mineral samples. Fred operated Southern Indians LTD, which sold Native American artifacts such as arrowheads. He was an active member and leader in the Brasstown Masonic Lodge, the Murphy Lions Club, the Junior Order of United American Mechanics, the Blue Ridge Rural Electric Association, and numerous other professional, fraternal, and social organizations. He was informally known as a bit of a jokester with a big personality.

Other members of the Scroggs family, whose lives are reflected in part in this collection, also played important roles in the community and at the Folk School. Fred's wife, Mae Arrant Scroggs, was a renowned maker of sun bonnets and maintained a relationship with Olive Dame Campbell and others at the school even after her husband's death. Fred and Mae's daughters Lillian and Blanche worked for the Mountain Valley Creamery. Blanche also served on the Board of Directors for the Folk School in the 1970s and was the Folk School bookkeeper for many years. She collected a series of informal and formal oral history recordings related to Scroggs family history, some of which are referenced in the "Related Material" section of this guide. Fred and Mae's son Mercer, a WWII veteran and local personality, was known for his satirical bid in the race for U.S. President in 1992. The Fain Archives also holds a series of miniature models of buildings in Brasstown made by Mercer Scroggs.

The following family tree was created to be a reference for researchers of this collection. Please note: This is not a complete genealogy, but rather an attempt to illustrate the relationships of some of the people whose names or information appear frequently in this collection.

Scope and Contents

Although this collection is primarily composed of materials by or about Fred O. Scroggs, a significant portion of materials were produced by other Scroggs family members. Some materials were created before Fred was born but may have been passed down to or safeguarded by him (such as his father Lucius' business records and personal effects). Others were created (by him or others) during or after his life and collected by his siblings or children. This explains why, for instance, there are letters written both to and by Fred in the Correspondence series.

Artwork includes sketches done by Fred, mostly dated 1909 and likely done while he attended Young Harris College. Other sketches were completed later in his life, some with written explanations attached. Folder 1.4 contains a sketch which is a copy of a clipping saved by L. L. Scroggs, with a note from Fred.

Awards and Recognition contains certificates and ribbons from the Blue Ridge Electric Cooperative, county and regional fairs, and the Mineralogical and Lapidary Societies, as well as two satirical novelty certificates.

Clippings includes newspaper pages and fragments saved by L. L. Scroggs, Fred O. Scroggs, Barbara Scroggs Mauney, and others, ranging from 1800 to 2007. The topics of saved articles include Native American (especially Cherokee) history, myths, and relics; mineralogy events and societies; local and national current events; obituaries of family and friends, and other topics. In Folder 1.9 is a reproduction of the Ulster Gazette for January 4, 1800, with a note that reads, "This newspaper is the property of Miss Emily Sword and was printed by the Cherokee Scout for E. C. Moore." Folder 1.10 contains what is likely an imitation of the July 2, 1863 issue of the Vicksburg Citizen, printed on wallpaper (Folder 1.39 has a clipping which makes reference to the Vicksburg paper in 1954). Folder 1.24 houses a tribute to L.L. Scroggs written by Olive Dame Campbell after his death in 1935. Folder 1.36 contains some clippings of humorous articles submitted by Fred to The State magazine showcasing altered images of extraordinarily large watermelons.

The Correspondence series spans Boxes 1 and 2 and contains communication addressed to Fred O. Scroggs and to members of the Strange, Scroggs, and Arrant families, including Jane Green Strange, Lillie Strange, L.L. Scroggs, Bob Scroggs, Mae Arrant Scroggs, and Wanda Scroggs Hampton. Topics range from personal to legal to business inquiry, with a significant portion of correspondence directed to Fred regarding his lapidary business. Folder 1.79 holds a letter from the superintendent of public instruction regarding the building of John C. Campbell Folk School. Folders 1.91-1.94 are related to activities of the Folk School's Board of Directors from 1973 to 1975. Folder 1.32 contains a copy of a letter from Simon and Stone Chekalilee to M&M Bank in Robbinsville, NC, regarding the economic troubles of the Great Depression. Folder 1.177 has a letter from an outside business advisor to Folk School Director John Ramsay about the financial state of the school in 1973. Folder 2.250 includes letters addressed to Dame Olive Campbell wishing to sell some woodworking.

Please note: Folders 2.234-2.240, which house Fred's correspondence with Waldo "Doc" Jones, contain very offensive language and derogatory discussion of African Americans, including Jones' patients.

Events contains programs, invitations, and posters for events.

The Financial series contains personal and business sales and tax records for Nelson Strange, W.J.A. Strange, L.L. Scroggs, Fred Scroggs, and others. Most documents prior to 1890 relate to the Strange family. Some documents are accompanied by notes of explanation from Fred O. Scroggs, dated in the 1960s. Notably, Folder 2.460 contains a bill of sale for an enslaved child named Angel to a J.B. Stanridge. Folder 2.464 contains mention of W.J.A. Strange hiring the labor of "Negro Lee" for the year 1863. Folder 2.514 contains a budget and plan for installing a telephone line in 1925, facilitated by Fred. Folder 2.526 holds a workbook belonging to Dale Scroggs for a 1942 vocational agriculture project. Financial extends into Box 3. Folders 3.542-3.549 have been relocated to Box 5 for collections care reasons.

Folklore contains notes, "superstitions," short stories, and song lyrics, most without sources noted.

Genealogy includes compiled histories, transcripts of interviews and firsthand accounts, notes, and lists of family members. Special attention is given to lifeways, such as how people farmed and built homes before industrialization, as well as to the time of the Civil War and how it impacted the people in this area. This section is not limited to information directly related to the Scroggs family.

The John C. Campbell Folk School series contains materials from Blanche Scroggs Smith's time on the Board of Directors in the 1970s as well as Fred's time of involvement in the 1920s and 1930s. Folder 3.623 contains a clipping of the third issue of the JCCFS newsletter featuring Fred. Folders 3.632-3 contain donation pledge records showing the amounts of labor, cash, and land that was promised if Brasstown was chosen as the location for the Folk School. Folder 3.634 contains an early advertisement (1946) for the veterans' program at the Folk School.

Land Records contains contracts, deeds, leases, plats, and other official records relating to land ownership in Cherokee and Clay Counties, especially within the Strange and Scroggs families. A topic that emerges as contentious is the shifting boundary between Cherokee and Clay Counties, including where Brasstown falls on that line. Folder 6.40 contains the deed of sale for the land which would become, in part, the original location of the Folk School, purchased by Nelson Strange in 1838 from the federal government.

Legal includes statements of debt, letters of appointment, registrations, and other official documents.

Local History includes both primary and secondary source material relating to Cherokee County and Clay County history, although much of this series consists of typed notes and quotes from interviews by Fred. There are also scrapbook pages with photographs and drawings of buildings and machines.

Maps contains both official and hand-drawn maps, mostly of the Brasstown area.

Memorials includes funeral visitor logs, prayer cards, and programs. Folder 3.734 contains memorial materials for Fred O. Scroggs.

The Mountain Valley Cooperative series contains articles of incorporation for the Cooperative (Folder 3.736), meeting minutes, financial statements, and communication between the members of the board and outside agencies such as the Cooperative Extension service. Mountain Valley Creamery contains much of the same kinds of documents for the Creamery, which predated the Cooperative.

Mineralogy contains event invitations, advertisements, directories of business contacts, professional publications, and personal notes collected by Fred in relation to his lapidary business. The sub-series Organizations contains membership information, correspondence, and publications related to the many mineralogy organizations of which Fred was a member, especially the Tri-State Rockhounds.

Native Americans includes notes about the history and mythology of Native Americans (more specifically, the Cherokee people) with special attention paid to their relationship to geology and mineralogy. This series also contains correspondence with, among others, Waldo "Doc" Jones. Jones served as Fred's business partner under Southern Indians LTD, through which they sold artifacts such as arrowheads.

Newsletters contains copies of the Brasstown Blotter, a newsletter published by Olive Dame Campbell and Marguerite Butler, ranging from 1944 to 1947.

Organizations includes membership records, certificates, and correspondence related to the various organizations of which Fred was involved, especially the Brasstown Masonic Lodge. Other organizations represented include Blue Ridge Rural Electric Association, the Junior Order of United American Mechanics, and the Southern Appalachian Mineral Society.

Patents contains a certificate related to a patent addressed to W.J.A. Strange in 1880.

Photographs is a series broad in date of creation, subject, and origin. Most identified photos are of family members and ancestors of Fred O. Scroggs. Some photos are placed into context with notes by Fred made in the 1960s. Many photos are of buildings or landscapes taken on family vacations or travels. Folder 4.891 contains extensive photography of the damage dealt to Myrtle Beach, SC, by a hurricane in 1954. Folders 4.900.1-4.900.2 contain photos taken from an album, so they should be considered within that unit of organization.

Postcards contains un-sent postcards from various locations and time periods.

Publications encompasses both whole and fragments of publications and articles including sermons, mineralogy information, history, science, and general interest topics. Notably, folder 4.912 houses a Hebrew Almanac for the year 1941-1942 written in Hebrew, labelled "Compliments of Stein's Kosher Delicatessen."

School Records contains a report card from Young Harris College for Fred for the fall term of 1907.

Miscellaneous contains materials that could not be sorted into another category.

Box 5 contains objects and oversized materials, some of which have been relocated from other boxes. These include ledgers, publications, and non-cataloged objects.

Administrative Information

Acquisition Information

This collection was donated to the Fain Archives by John Campbell (J.C.) Scroggs, son of Fred O. Scroggs. It was received by JCCFS Archivist Anna Shearouse on February 27, 2009.

Accession #(s): 2021.20

Accruals

An additional box of papers from Fred O. Scroggs (2025.3) was donated by descendant Justin Scroggs in January 2025. This addendum has not yet been processed. Other family members may still have materials from Fred O. Scroggs, but no additional donations are anticipated.

Processing Information

Inventorying and/or some processing and digitization of the original four boxes of materials appears to have been done by Anna Shearouse, who created the original collection guide, date unknown (see Archives server). The collection was further processed, partially digitized, and cataloged in PastPerfect by Travis Souther, c. 2021-2023. Travis' box list may be found on the Archives server. Processing was completed by Natalie Warren, fall 2024. This finding aid was also written by Natalie Warren, fall 2024. Natalie's processing notes may be found on the Archives server.
